DORA: OR, MY CHILD-WIFE'S FAREWELL. Inscribed to Charles Dickens, Esq.
"I said it was better as it is," she whispers as she holds me in her arms, "oh, Doady, after more years, you never could have loved your child-wife better than you do; and after more years she would have so tired and disappointed you, that you might not have been able to love her half so well! I know I was too young and foolish. It is much better as it is!"—Vide David Copperfield.

WE HAVE GOLD ENOUGH FOR ALL!!!
There they come: more men for our Mountains! Welcome to Bathurst, Gentlemen, welcome one and all; the more the merrier!
J. GORDON begs to inform his numerous old friends and daily increasing new patrons and supporters, that he has at last received the whole of the purchased by himself in Sydney, in April, and which he intends to sell for Cash—and Cash only - at such very moderate prices, (notwithstanding the feverish effects of a rapidly rising market and the present exhorbitantly high rate of carriage), as cannot fail to meet the approbation and secure the confidence of all, or most of all, who may be pleased to favour him with a visit.
J. G. would also take the liberty of reminding those—be they few or many—who find some difficulty in these singularly eventful times—when a spirit of power is at work in the wilderness, and benign Nature, breaking her silence of centuries, sends forth a voice from the depth of her vast solitudes in behalf of suffering humanity, that will be heard and received by the nations of the earth as an awakening call to a happier fate, and to a higher destiny than nations have as yet experienced! In sitting down to their juicy joint of the present without thinking somewhat despondingly upon the ill-flavoured and lean-fleshed kine of the future, that there is still plenty of corn in Egypt, and men who will go down with their money in their hands, to buy and bring it up. In less than two weeks, he alone expects to receive at least seven or eight dray loads of TEA, SUGAR, and FLOUR, and other necessary articles. And as others no doubt will also be occasionally receiving similar supplies, it would be well to give our Sydney and other visitors, all bound for the enchanted forest, to rock the cradle of Australia's new-born Golden Era, a cordial welcome to this our own wildly beautiful, highly favoured, and irrestibly attractive "Land of the West," and to sing or say in the words of the old Scottish song—
Our heart to despondency we ne'er will submit,
For we've aye been provided for, and sae will we yet,
And sae will we yet and sae will we yet,
We've trusted aye to Providence, and sae will we yet.
Bathurst, June, 1851. 11205

GOLD MANIA! GOLD DIGGERS BEWARE!
PAUSE AWHILE! Bethink you ere you pronounce your arrangements complete. Are you proof against disease? Be prepared then with a remedy. And what remedy so well tried and universally known as Porter's Family Aperient Antibilious Pills. Thousands can testify to their invaluable qualities, and they have been highly extolled by the faculty. Their composition is so harmless that no fear from exposure or after costiveness is to be dreaded; and yet so mild and effectual is their action, that they may be fitly designated golden pills.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS AND OINTMENT.
THE Wholesale Agent for the sale of the above Medicines begs to call the attention of the public to the following case of cure of a malady to which the inhabitants of this colony seem peculiarly liable, namely—the loss of their fingers from poisonous wounds:—
To Mr. S. Emanuel, Agent for Holloway's Pills and Ointment, Goulburn.
Sir,—I beg to inform you, for the benefit of the public, of the following cure effected on me by the use of the above Pills and Ointment. I was killing a pig and was bit in the finger, and was very bad, and under four doctors, who wanted to cut my hand off; and when I would not consent, I could get no cure. I was advised to use Holloway's Pills and Ointment, and I am happy to say, after using them for one month, I am entirely cured.
CHARLES HUGGINS.

CAUTION!—None are Genuine unless the words "Holloway's Pills and Ointment, London," are engraved on the Government Stamp, pasted on every Pot and Box, with the same words woven in the water mark of the books of direction wrapped round the medicines.
Should unprincipled venders recommend parties asking for Holloway's Pills and Ointment not to buy them, but to take something else in their stead, they do so only for the purpose of getting a greater profit by what they wish them to purchase.

BULLADELA.
TO BE LET, with possession on 1st July, 1851, 1060 Acres near Bulladela, and the junction of the Crawford and Myall Rivers, and at the head of the navigation of the latter, commanding an extensive back run between the mountain ranges and the right bank of the river, as well as a large tract of land on the left bank, including five sections of land rented from the Government at the rate of ten shillings per section, under the regulations of 29th March, 1848. The run is peculiarly adapted for horses and cattle, and capable of carrying at least 100 of the former and 700 of the latter. The homestead, which is ready for immediate occupation, consists of a slab cottage with four rooms, detached kitchen, three-stall stable, a small garden, with a paling fence, and other convenient appurtenances. There is also a four-railed and capped stock-yard, with three draughting yards, covered milking bails, with calf-pens, two four-railed and capped stallion paddocks, fourteen rod square each, with boxes attached, a cleared paddock of rich brush land of about 12 acres, which has been under cultivation. The homestead is surrounded by a three-railed fence paddock, and there is also about 1000 rods of fencing on the boundaries. The fences were put up about five years ago, and the present tenant is bound to leave them in tenantable condition. From the excellence of the run for fattening cattle, and the convenience of shipping, this would be found an admirable situation for a salting or boiling-down establishment. This property is situated about 45 miles from Raymond Terrace, and 22 from Stroud. Application to be made to Mr. PEARSE, Jun., at present residing on the premises; or to WILLIAM MACPHERSON, Esq., Macquarie-street, Sydney. 11634

STEAM COMMUNICATION WITH ENGLAND.

The following is an abstract of the conditions of the contract proposed by the Admiralty for the conveyance of her Majesty's mails and despatches, monthly, each way, between Singapore and Sydney:—

The mails are to be conveyed monthly to Sydney, on the arrival at Singapore of the outward packets of the Peninsular and Oriental Company; and are to be brought from Sydney to Singapore so as to meet the homeward packet from China.

The conditions then set forth the requisites of the vessels in respect to every branch of their equipments, and provide that the designs and plans of all vessels to be built for the performance of the contract shall be submitted to the commissioners previously to their construction Deductions from the payment agreed upon in the contract are provided for in the event of delays in the delivery of the mails, except in cases where the delay arises from weather or other accidental causes over which the contractors or their servants have no control, and which are not caused by deficiency of speed of the vessel. Provision is also made for the reception and accommodation on board of an officer in her Majesty's navy, who shall be recognised as the agent of the Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty, and whose duties are set forth in detail.

The whole postage of all letters conveyed in the vessels employed under the contract, whether carried out of her Majesty's dominions or not, is to be at the disposal of her Majesty's Postmaster-General.

Then follow provisions in the event of the contractors failing to provide efficient vessels in accordance with the terms of the contract; and provisions also for the survey and examination of the vessels by the only authorised officers.

The usual provisions are further made for the conveyance and accommodation of naval, military, and civil officers in the service of the Crown (themselves and families.)

The contract to commence and continue in force for seven years, from the day on which the first of such vessels shall put to sea from Singapore or Sydney (as the case may be) with Her Majesty's mails, in performance of the service contracted for. All payments to be made quarterly.

The contractors shall not assign, underlet, or dispose of the contract, or any part thereof, without the consent of the Commissioners. And no member of the House of Commons to be admitted to any share or part of the contract, or to any benefit to arise therefrom. The contractors are to be bound with responsible sureties, in the penalty of £4000, for the due fulfilment of the contract.

These conditions are dated from the Admiralty, January 9, 1851.

Cargo of the Souvenier: 30 bundles sheepskins, 5 bales wool, 377 hides, 78 casks tallow, 7000 feet pine, and 500 staves. The Souvenir sailed from Cowan Cowan on the 1st. The brig Jack and schooner Lavina, hence, passed Cape Moreton on the same day; from Monday until Thursday the Souvenir experienced heavy gales from the S.S.W. There were no vessels lying at Brisbane on her departure.

The Cornelia, from Wellington, reports the Louis and Miriam having sailed for this port in company. She spoke the William and Alfred, hence, in lat. 39·15 south, and long. 172·31 east, on the 28th May. The schooner Esther sailed for Nelson, and the Scotia was loading at Wellington for Sydney.

The following vessels are advertised for Sydney to sail from Melbourne:—On the 4th instant, Don Juan, schooner; on the 5th, Diana, brig; on the 7th, Christina, brig; on the 8th, Swordfish, schooner, and Esperanza, brig—all with passengers for the Gold Diggings.

At Portland, the brig William Hill is laid on for Sydney, to sail with despatch.

Errata.—In report, per Bondicar, from London, for, "made much water," read "shipped much water."

Mr. R. Fawcett will sell the schooner Cygnet, and cutter Catherine, at his rooms, this day, at 12 o'clock, precisely.

THE GOLD FIELDS.

Letters received in town yesterday, speak of small quantities of gold having been found at various places between Bathurst and Wellington; and although at present no strict search has been made, there is little doubt that in a very few days several new gold fields will be discovered. Mr. Francis Oakes has also found gold in small quantities at the Crookwall River, about thirty-five miles from Goulburn, and has sent it into that town for the purpose of claiming the reward offered by the people there for the discovery of gold in their district.

Several large parcels were received in Sydney yesterday, the principal being 130 oz. by Messrs. Walker, and 80 oz. by the Commercial Bank.

We believe that about £1000 worth of gold was forwarded to England by the Thomas Arbuthnot, on the 3rd instant; and by the Lady Clarke, to sail this morning, we have heard of three shipments, viz., 439 oz. by W. Walker and Co.; 111½ oz. by S. A. Donaldson and Co., and 85 oz. by G. A. Lloyd. This is worth £2100. These two shipments, which will probably arrive in England within a few days of each other, will convince the mercantile interests in London that the reports as to the gold fields which appear in the local papers are to be depended on, and have a great effect throughout England.

Some interesting particulars from our own Correspondent and the Bathurst paper will be found in other columns.

THE RAILWAY.

We have at length the satisfaction of announcing that a Despatch from Earl Grey has been received by Sir Charles Fitz Roy, communicating Her Majesty's assent to the Act incorporating the Sydney Railway Company, and the confirmation by Her Majesty's Government of the permanent guarantee of Four per cent. per annum upon the first £100,000 of subscribed capital, payable from the Land Fund. His Lordship, we believe, suggests some amendments in the Act of Incorporation, which are not considered important. The recommendation subsequently made by the Governor that the interest should be increased to Five per cent. does not appear to have reached the Colonial Office at the time that the Guarantee was under consideration. But the principle of a permanent Guarantee being recognised there seems no reason to apprehend that the rate finally agreed upon by the local Government will be confirmed, especially when the precedent adopted by the East India Company is considered.

AUSTRALIA AND THE LONDON PRESS.

The intelligence recently received from our London Correspondent, and through the medium of the London newspapers, abundantly confirms the hopes we had previously expressed as to the effect of our gold-field on the political interests of the colony.

Even while in profound ignorance of the grand discovery, our friends at home were renewing their exertions in our behalf, and with every prospect of success. The value of the British possessions in Australia was never more clearly seen, and perhaps never so highly appreciated, by intelligent and influential men. The fact had become more manifest, that without the large and increasing supplies of wool which might be looked for from this hemisphere, the manufacturing interests of the mother-country would be seriously imperilled. "The great difficulty in the year 1851, in the woollen and worsted districts," says a Manchester Circular, "will apparently be a scarcity of the raw material. Wool is, without doubt, being consumed faster than it is produced; and prices must continue to rise until enhanced value checks the consumption, or fresh sources of supply are opened to meet the yearly increasing demand." Under these circumstances, manufacturers and merchants, as well as statesmen and politicians, naturally turned a more earnest attention to the Australian colonies, and were prepared to take a deeper interest in whatever should promise assistance in the extension of their resources, and the advancement of their prosperity. Knowing all this, our friends in Parliament would be emboldened to take high ground in the advocacy of our cause.

And our Correspondent advises us that such was the case—that they were ready for action, and resolved on addressing themselves to colonial questions at an early period of the session. We learn also that the Colonial Reform Society is neither dead nor sleeping, but was repluming its strength, and maturing its plans for a new campaign. We regret that our correspondent appears to think lightly of the services of this Society during the Parliamentary struggle of last year. It may in some particulars have misunderstood our wishes and our wants; but we cannot for a moment doubt that to the zealous exertions of its members during the previous recess, we are in a large measure indebted for the extraordinary interest and animation with which both Houses entered into the discussion of our Constitution Act. Nor can we doubt that their perseverance in the patriotic course upon which they had so nobly entered would be attended with still more beneficial results, inasmuch as they had acquired fuller and more accurate information on colonial affairs than they possessed a year ago. The great complaint of the colonies until within the last twelve or eighteen months was, that in England they were disregarded, the Minister of the day being left to govern or misgovern them at his own pleasure, unquestioned and unnoticed either in or out of Parliament. This complaint, at any rate, can no longer be repeated; and for the removal of its cause we owe much to the able men of whom the Association is composed.

One of the most cheering signs of the times, however, is the energetic manner in which the affairs of Australia have been taken up by the London Press. Our recent extracts have shown that in more than one of the leading journals our interests are supported by writers who well understand the subject, and whose talents enable them to turn their information to the best account. The Times is coming out most manfully. The "leading journal of Europe" has entered the lists as the staunch and uncompromising champion of Australian rights Its powerful columns display a familiarity with our concerns which could scarcely have been acquired by any thing short of local experience, and a warmth of interest in all relating to them which local attachments could alone have enkindled. It is rumoured, indeed, that a learned gentleman whose eloquence once captivated our little senate, and whom the electors of our metropolis delighted to honour, has been called to occupy one of the highest posts of political influence known to the literary world—that of a leading writer in the Times. If such be the fact, and there is no reason to doubt it, we rejoice in it not merely because of the eminent ability, copious information, indomitable courage, and unquestionable zeal, which our new advocate will bring to the arduous task assigned to him; but because the selection for such a task of an individual known to be so identified with Australian interests, and so adverse to the colonial policy of my Lord Grey, indicates that in the best informed quarters there is a conviction that the British mind is prepared to take a lively and lasting interest in the discussion of Australian questions, and to deal with them in a liberal and conciliatory spirit. Australia had already occupied a prominent place in speeches from the Throne, and in the debates of Lords and Commons: she is now to occupy a prominent place in the leading columns of the Times.

Thus singularly is the way being prepared for that wonderful announcement which in a few weeks will burst upon the British nation. Taking as its basis the numbers and intelligence of our population, and our commercial importance to the parent country, the London Press is claiming for us enlarged powers of self-government, the unfettered expenditure of our own revenues, the management of our own lands, and entire deliverance from the curse of transportation. The Minister may for the present sneer at the demands, and pronounce them to be "quite out of the question." But wait awhile. Let our friends in Parliament and our champions of the Press once become cognisant of the Great Fact, that, in addition to all these considerations, our country teems with virgin gold, and they will carry all before them. It will then be "out of the question," not that our rights should be so soon conceded, but that they should be any longer withheld.

We have Wellington papers to the 21st ultimo. The General Legislative Council of New Zealand assembled at Wellington, on the 10th, when Sir G. Grey made a lengthy address, of which we shall endeavour to give an abstract to-morrow. The principal measures to submitted to the Council are, a Bill for creating Representative Legislatures, and a Bill for settling titles to lands obtained from the New Zealand Company. The Council was adjourned for ten days, in consequence of the absence of two members who were expected from Auckland.

[From our London Correspondent.]

London, December 31, 1851.

It seems natural while so near the confines of the Old Year, that I should invite you to a retrospect of its principal occurrences, so far at least as they concern the joint relations of the mother country and the colonies; and the occasion is scarcely less appropriate for recording our anticipations of the future in the same family connection. Foremost in the events of 1850, possessing interest to the Australian public, was of course the passing of the Australian Bill. The discussions to which this measure gave rise in the two Houses of Parliament, from the very commencement to literally the last day of the session, and the discussions which took place concurrently in the daily and weekly press of the Three Kingdoms - evidencing as they did a strange amount of misconception, ignorance, and prejudice—had at least the effect of making the Australian colonies very extensively known and spoken of in this country, and raising in general estimation the political and social rank of the Anglo-Australian communities. From this period I think we may fairly date the elevation of the combined colonies of Australia to the same rank in the popular view as that which the old American colonies occupied about the middle of the last century. It is true you do not equal the Anglo-Americans of that day in populousness, but the rapid accessions which you are making to your population—your unparalleled progress in substantial wealth, your large trade with the parent state, and the great energy and enterprise by which you are distinguished, more than counterbalance that deficiency in fixing the importance of your external relations.

The final rejection of the overtures of the Home Government for purchasing your consent to the re-introduction of convicts—the active and almost hostile resistance of the Cape to the landing of even one ship-load of British malefactors, the Cape men wisely dreading the precedent involved in their admission,—the refusal of the colonists of Van Diemen's Land to believe themselves in a happy and honourable condition in possessing the monopoly of all the ruffianism and villany, of which a nation of thirty millions would annually purge itself—have united to hamper the Government on the question of secondary punishment, to an extent which becomes of serious national importance. One can fancy a Grey even wishing that he had not upset the projects of a Stanley and a Gladstone, and a Whig Chancellor of the Exchequer deploring that he had been niggardly in a case of small party importance.

We have seen during the year our hopes again dashed of obtaining steam communication between this country and the antipodes. With great constitutional blessings, I think we must still admit that at the present age of the world our complicated Executive is somewhat too "slow" a piece of mechanism to stand muster much longer. It requires to be adjusted to the steam "movement" of the times. It has been more than once remarked in our leading journal that had this matter been left to private enterprise alone, the thing would have been satisfactorily accomplished long ago. I can only hope a rumour I heard to-day that the various authorities of Downing-street, Cannon-row, and the India House, have at last found out a method of agreeing on this subject, may not prove another disappointment.

The colonial question of the ensuing year will, no doubt, be the Cape constitution question, and the disposal of our convicts. The former subject has become additionally complicated from the late disputes between the Governor and that quasi-constituent legislature, which seems to have met only to place Government and people at direct issue. The Home Government thought the Cape authorities and the Cape people might concur, of course after a due amount of disputation, in recommending some form of constitution for the future government of the colony. On the contrary, they appear only to have succeeded in upsetting the existing constitution; and now Lord Grey is threatened with a Smith Montagu scheme, and a rival one from the popular mint of Messrs. Fairbairn and Co. The idea is pretty general here that the victory of the Cape men in the matter of the convicts has somewhat inflated them, and as the Home Government seem to have meant well in this affair of the Constitution, and Sir Harry Smith really incurred great risk on behalf of the colonists in the convict question, it is to be regretted that what was meant as a healing measure should have got converted into an additional aggravation.

With respect to the convicts there is no portending what course the Government will pursue. But it is understood that great efforts will be made in the Parliament by independent members to have the transportation question settled in such a manner as will ensure justice to all existing colonial interests. The monstrous doctrine of Lord Grey, advanced last session in a fit of apparent desperation, that this country acquired a prescription of wrong to use colonies for ever as convict settlements if they had been originally founded as such, will no doubt meet the reprobation it deserves.

In English affairs we are taught that the great topics of the ensuing session will be the Roman question, with its collateral topics of Puseyism and reform of the Church of England, and sweeping amendments in the process and pleadings of all the superior Courts of Law.

One of the late military journals states that Captain Sir Everard Home, C.B., Bart., now about proceeding to the Australian seas, is to hoist a blue pennant in that quarter, and take command as a separate station, instead of a division of the East India station: also, that the Acheron, steamer, Captain Stokes, is not to be brought to England, but is to be paid off in Sydney, her officers and crew being sent to England in others of her Majesty's ships. The Acheron is then to undergo necessary repairs in the colony, and to be afterwards attached as a tender to the squadron.

LAW INTELLIGENCE.

SUPREME COURT.—Tuesday.

Before His Honor Mr. Justice Dickinson, and a Jury of four.

SADLING v. NELSON.

This was an action on promises. The declaration was upon a special agreement, and alleged that the defendant had agreed to enter into partnership with the plaintiff as storekeepers at Maitland, and as storekeepers and publicans at Lowder's station, and the breach assigned was a non-performance of the agreement. The defendant pleaded, first, non assumpsit; and, secondly, an abandonment and rescinding of the agreement by mutual consent. The plaintiff replied by taking issue upon the first and traversing the latter plea.

Mr. Darvall appeared for the plaintiff, and Mr. Foster for the defendant.

In the month of November last the plaintiff and defendant were in treaty for a partnership as storekeepers in Maitland and at New England. Bernard Reardon, clerk to Mr. James Simmons, the auctioneer, proved that he saw the plaintiff and defendant together at Simmons' auction rooms in November last, when defendant purchased a quantity of rice, and, in the presence of both the parties, Simmons gave directions to Reardon to make out the account to Messrs. B. Nelson and Sadling. These goods were forwarded to Maitland, and were marked by Reardon, S. & N. An admission of the partnership was made by both parties in Mr. Joel J. Cohen's shop; and upon the latter suggesting that a partnership would be to Sadling's disadvantage, it was stated that it was of no use his offering a suggestion, as they were then in partnership, which would be legally ratified by some professional man at Maitland. Similar admissions on the part of the defendant were proved by Mr. Samuel Solomon and Mr. Philip Hart. It was proved also by Mr. Francis Cohen, that about the commencement of the present year he asked the defendant how it happened that the plaintiff and he had disagreed, when the latter replied that the plaintiff was too particular, and would have everything in black and white.

On the part of the defendant, it was shown by the evidence of Thomas Osborne, his clerk, that on the 3rd of December last, plaintiff and defendant gave him instructions to write out an agreement of partnership, which agreement was produced. After the instructions were given, the plaintiff asked the amount of the business done at the store in New England, and said, upon being informed, that the business would not suit him, and he would not sign the agreement. The cash £146, which he was to bring into the concern, was then returned to him. The credibility of this witness was attempted to be shaken by showing that the plaintiff had offered him £100 and a gold watch, if he would stick to him and swear for him.

His Honor, in summing up, told the Jury that they must find a verdict for the plaintiff, if they thought the agreement had been entered into on the first issue: and if the Jury disbelieved the evidence of Osborne, upon the second issue also. He left it to the Jury to say whether there had been an agreement between the parties, and if so, whether the contract had been abandoned before the partnership came into existence.

Verdict for the plaintiff on the first issue; damages one farthing; and for the defendant on the second issue.

Attorneys for the plaintiff, Messrs. Dunsmure and Longmore. For the defendant, Mr. Josephson.

DOE DEM. WANT v. O'BRIEN.

This was an action of ejectment, brought by Mr. Want, to recover from Michael O'Brien the possession of five hundred acres of land at Castle Hill, in the county of Cumberland.

Mr. Foster appeared for the lessor of the plaintiff.

The defendant was called upon to confess lease, entry, and ouster, and not appearing, the plaintiff was nonsuited.

In Equity.

Before His Honor the Primary Judge.

MURPHY v. COWELL.

This was an application by petition of the infant plaintiff and Henry Gordon, for leave to except to the Master's report. A decree had been made in the cause, referring it to the Master to appoint a guardian of the infant plaintiff, Joseph Webster alias Baxter. The petitioner Gordon and the infant had sent a proposal for the appointment of Gordon, and evidence was taken by the Master as to the propriety of the appointment. The defendant, Cowell, afterwards sent in a proposal for himself as guardian. The Master reported in favour of the latter applicant, on the ground that he had been named a trustee and executor under the will of John Webster, the putative father of the infant.

Mr. Donnelly appeared for the infant and Gordon, and Mr. Fisher for Cowell.

His Honor reserved judgment.

The following causes are entered for trial this day: the Queen v. M'Intosh, Lingard v. Brady, Bayley v. Blaxland, Holland v. Hill and others, Dixon v. Fisher, Ritchie v. Ritchie.

WATER POLICE OFFICE.—Monday.

Breach of the Gunpowder Act.—In pursuance of an information taken and exhibited before Captain Browne and Alderman Allen, at the Water Police Office, on Thursday last; Captain Thornhill, commanding the ship Castle Eden, appeared on Monday before Captain Browne and John Campbell, Esq., to answer a charge preferred by Mr. Bramwell, Tide Surveyor of Her Majesty's Customs; namely, that on the 12th day of May last, Captain Thornhill, being master of the ship Castle Eden, then and there lying in Sydney Cove, had on board of the said ship about 74 lbs. of gunpowder, contrary to the statute. Mr. Nichols conducted the prosecution; Mr. Robert Johnson the defence. Mr. Nichols said, that this was a prosecution under the Gunpowder Act (5 Victoria, No. 11), which requires the master of every ship or vessel arriving in the harbour of Port Jackson, to land at the Government magazine, in the particular manner provided, all gunpowder which may be on board such vessel, whether as cargo or stores; and further enacts, that the master of any ship or vessel lying either at Sydney Cove or Darling Harbour, on board of which any gunpowder shall be found, shall be liable to a fine of £1 sterling for every pound weight of such gunpowder so found. A later Act (13 Vic., No. 24) gives power to magistrates to mitigate the penalty to an amount not less than one-third of that fixed by the former Act. Mr. Bramwell, Tide Surveyor of her Majesty's Customs, deposed as follows: "Timothy Thornhill, complained of in the information, is now before the Court; I am an officer in her Majesty's Customs; the defendant commands the Castle Eden: I went on board that vessel on the 13th of May; she was then lying in Sydney Cove. I found 74 pounds of gunpowder on board; I seized it, and sent it to the magazine on Goat Island, by Bailey, the coxwain of the Customs' boat."—John Bailey, coxwain of the Customs' boat, also proved the seizure, and the weighing of the powder at Goat Island, the total weight being 75 lbs. 14 oz. Mr. Buchanan, jun., of the Government establishment, Goat Island, proved the reception of the powder. This was the case for the prosecution. Mr. Robert Johnson, for the defence, now requested that the deposition of Mr. Bramwell might be read over again. It was so read, and it was found, that in the first few lines, as mentioned above, the following alteration had been made by the Clerk of the Bench, at the request of Mr. Nichols. Instead of "the defendant commands the Castle Eden," the line had been altered to "the defendant then commanded the Castle Eden." This alteration, the Clerk of the Bench said, had been made by request of Mr. Nichols. Mr. Johnson begged the attention of the Bench to this very material alteration of the deposition. It would be seen by the whole structure of that, and the preceding and succeeding sentences, that the evidence of Mr. Bramwell, as elicited by Mr. Nichols, was, that Captain Thornhill now commands the Castle Eden, not, that he then commanded her. And what was the meaning of the word "then," as introduced at Mr. Nichols' suggestion? Nothing. There was no antecedent of date to which the word "then" could possibly refer. Mr. Nichols admitted that the word "then" had been inserted at his instance by the Clerk of the Bench after the deposition had been taken. The blame, if any, must be entirely attachable to himself. But, he submitted, that it was competent for the Bench to recall Mr. Bramwell, and have the slip rectified. Captain Browne said, that if Mr. Nichols could show, to the satisfaction of the Bench, that he could re-open his case, after having closed it, they would recall Mr. Bramwell. Mr. Nichols admitted that he could not, and the case was dismissed. Mr. Johnson said, that he considered it due to Captain Thornhill to state, that although, by the slip made by the other side, he had defeated the prosecution by a legal technicality, he had been quite prepared to defend it on the merits of the case. Although bound under a penalty of £20 to furnish every ship entering Port Jackson with a copy of the Harbour Regulations, the pilots had not done so in the instance of the Castle Eden until after Captain Thornhill had infringed the law by bringing his powder down into the Cove. Captain Browne said, that inquiry should be made into this matter. It was part of the certificate made by every pilot after boarding a ship, that he had furnished the master with a copy of the harbour regulations, and had ascertained that no gunpowder was on board. Mr Johnson said, that he had subpœnased the pilots to prove that they had neglected to perform either of these duties in the case of the Castle Eden.

First Convictions in this Port under the New Mercantile Marine Act.—Elias Wyatt and John Pomeroy, two seamen belonging to the emigrant ship Emperor, which arrived in this port on Friday last, were placed at the bar on the following charge:—viz., that on the high seas, on the 12th of April last, they disobeyed orders, refusing to assist in sending down the top-gallant yard, and shortening sail, when a strong gale was anticipated, and the captain was compelled to double reef the topsails. Mr. Nichols, who conducted the prosecution, said that this was the first proceeding taken in this port under the new Mercantile Marine Act (13 and 14 Vict. c. 93.); which Act, although not yet in full force in this colony in respect to agreements made under the General Merchant Seamen's Act, was in operation so far as concerned all British registered ships that were in the United Kingdom on the 1st of January, 1851. The Emperor sailed from Plymouth on the 22nd of February last, and her crew had signed ship's articles under the new Act; the printed regulations being posted in the forecastle, agreeably to the provisions of the statute. The crew were generally badly behaved; and on the evening named in the information, had refused to do their duty, at a time, and in weather, when their services were greatly needed. The two prisoners had been foremost in insolent and insubordinate behaviour; and Wyatt had done no duty since that evening, nor Pomeroy for thirty-five days afterwards. Their excuse was, that they were harassed and unwell, but neither of them had applied to the surgeon-superintendent for medical treatment. These facts were proved by Captain Liddle, Dr. Payne, and the Chief Officer. The prisoners said, they were dissatisfied with the officers, and would willingly remain with the ship if the Captain and Chief Mate were removed. Captain Browne reminded the prisoners that they had placed themselves under the provisions of an Act framed with a due regard to the interests of both the masters and the seamen. The 78th section of that Act provided for the punishment of certain offences upon the arrival of a ship in port; and, under that section, the Bench, finding both prisoners guilty of wilful disobedience to the lawful commands of their captain, sentenced them each to be imprisoned, with hard labour, for four weeks. Captain Liddle then stated to the Bench, that the whole of his crew had refused to continue their duty, from the moment the anchor had dropped on Friday evening. The news of this being a gold country had turned their heads. Captain Browne said, that by the same section of the new Act, under which the Bench had just sentenced two of the crew, it was in the power of that Court, in its summary jurisdiction, to imprison for twelve weeks any of the crew who combined to disobey lawful commands, or to neglect duty. Moreover, if the more serious charge of conspiracy were preferred, the Supreme Court was empowered to inflict three years' imprisonment; but he, Captain Browne, trusted that the publicity which would doubtless be given to these proceedings would have its effect with the misguided men, and that they would return to their duty.—Yesterday, warrants were issued, at the instance of Captain Liddle, against the whole of the remainder of his crew; upon a charge of combining and agreeing together to oppose the progress of the voyage. The case will be heard this morning.

MULTUM IN PARVO.

(From late Australasian Papers.)

By the census returns of Van Diemen's Land there are 45,073 people belonging to the Church of England, 4485 to the Church of Scotland, 3772 Wesleyans, 2379 other Protestant Dissenters, 12,444 Roman Catholics, 435 Jews, 21 Mahomedans and Pagans.—The late Mr. Williams estimated the premises he occupied in Launceston as worth £12,000; his executors eight years ago sold his interest, the half to the other partner for £3000. The whole has lately been disposed of to Messrs. Campbell and De Little for £3100.—The town of Geelong contains 1592 houses and 8291 inhabitants.—The estate of Barley Brook, containing two thousand acres, fronting on the Ben Lomond Rivulet, between the Kingston and Glen Morrison estates (Van Diemen's Land), has been purchased by Mr. D. R. Falkiner, for the sum of £1250, from the Messrs. Ritchie.—Rains continue in the western districts of Port Phillip.—The Messrs. Carmichael have purchased the Retreat and Refuge Stations, with stock, &c., at the rate of 13s. a head for the sheep, and the stations and improvements given in. The stations are on the Glenelg River, about 70 miles from Portland, and are capable of depasturing about 18,000 sheep. There are at present only 11,144 on the runs, and the purchase was considered a good one, especially when the quality of the runs and sheep, the quantity of wool on the sheeps' back, the extent of the buildings, the liberality of the terms, &c., are taken into account.—Two clergymen of the Free Church of Scotland arrived in Melbourne by the late ships.—Several persons are out searching for gold in the Pyrenees, in the Port Phillip district.—The Melbourne Herald reports that a rich vein of silver has been discovered near Melbourne, the other papers say it is a hoax.—The Lyttelton Times had given great offence to the inhabitants of Wellington, and even to many of its own readers, by laying claim to the exclusive possession by his party of all the "station, independence, wealth, and integrity of New Zealand."—The amount raised in Geelong for the relief of the sufferers by the February fires was £2853.

Stealing from a Boat.—Francis Kearne, charged with stealing a bag containing 100 lbs. of flour, the property of Henry Hughes, was again brought up yesterday, pursuant to remand. It was proved that he was left in charge of the boat by the prosecutor, when the bag of flour and other things were in the boat; that he removed the boat from one wharf to another, without orders and without occasion; that when the flour was missed he was taxed with having taken it, when he said it was all right, but that there were two or three shillings on it—from which the prosecutor inferred that he had obtained money on it, and which was strengthened by the fact that he had just come "out of trouble," and on his representation that he was hard up, Mr. Hughes had agreed to take him up the Lane Cove river and give him permission to cut wood on his property, as a means of earning a livelihood for himself. He was committed for trial.

Intestate Estates.—An account of the several sums received and paid by Samuel Frederick Milford, Esq., Curator of Intestate Estates, under the 6th and 7th sections of the Act of the Governor and Legislative Council of New South Wales, intituled "An Act to provide for the payment of claims on the late Registrar of the Supreme Court, in respect of intestate estates." There have been no sums received or paid by me in this year, under the 6th and 7th sections of the above-mentioned Act of the Governor and Legislative Council of New South Wales. Samuel Frederick Milford, Curator of Intestate Estates. Supreme Court House, Sydney, 6th June.—Yesterday's Government Gazette.

Committals.—John Kelly was yesterday committed to take his trial for stealing a coat from one John Wilson. Wilson deposed that he was drinking at Ward's public-house, and that he offered the coat for sale, but not being able to obtain his price, he did not dispose of it; prisoner took the coat, said he would find a purchaser for it, which it appears he did, and the proceeds he expended in drink, the prosecutor being present. Prisoner said, that Kelly himself sold the coat and spent the money,—but had no witnesses to support his statement. Wilson was under the influence of drink when he gave Kelly into custody.—William Jacobs was committed to take his trial for stealing a mattress, a blanket, a tablecloth, a shawl, and two pinafores, from the residence of Mrs. Chitty, in Kent-street. On Monday forenoon, Mrs. Chitty was up-stairs, when she heard some one below; thinking it was her husband, she called out, but receiving no answer, she went to see who it was; there was no one in the house, and on going to the door found a little boy, and in consequence of what he told her went after the prisoner, in whose possession she found the articles mentioned. She took them from Jacobs, and gave information to the police, which led to his apprehension by constable Jones. Jacobs affected to have no knowledge of the transaction.

Stealing from a Dwelling.—John Foster, and Elizabeth his wife, in the service of Mr. Share, of Newtown, from whose premises on Saturday night or Sunday morning was stolen money to the amount of £57, with a cheque for £4, and an order for £19, were on Monday evening given into custody by Mr. Share on suspicion of being the thieves. They were brought before the bench yesterday, and remanded until to-day for further evidence.

Homebush Races.—The charge preferred by Constable Armstrong against Mr. Samuel Lyons, junior, for assulting him on the 30th ultimo, while in the execution of his duty at Homebush Races, was yesterday called on before Mr. Hill and the Police Magistrate. The prosecution was conducted by Mr. Nichols and the defence by Mr. Martin. The case for the prosecution being closed, Mr. Martin briefly addressed the Bench for the defence, when, it being nearly four o'clock, and there being several witnesses to call for the defence, the further hearing was postponed until to-day.

Stealing.—About ten o'clock on Monday night, a quantity of wearing apparel, of the value of about £8, the property of Mr. Peppers, was stolen from Entwisle's hotel, York-street, where Mr. Peppers is residing.

Housebreaking.—Shortly before one o'clock yesterday morning, Kenny, the private watchman employed by the residents in Jamison-street, discovered that Mr. Farrell's house had been entered, and a bundle of valuables packed up ready for removal. The entry appears to have been effected at one of the front windows, a pane of glass having been taken out, and the window opened. The whole transaction having taken place subsequent to the hour of midnight, no doubt the burglars heard the approach of the watchman, and being alarmed for their safety, decamped in too great haste to carry away the intended booty.

Official Appointment.—Lieut. M'Lerie will succeed Captain Browne as Visiting Magistrate at Cockatoo Island.

Stealing Show Goods.—Between five and six yesterday evening, two pairs of boots were stolen from the door of Mr. Beattie's shop, George street, where they were exposed for sale. Later in the evening, a boy named Muly lely, about ten years of age, who has alreadn frequently appeared at the Police Office, is consequence of his larcenous propensities, was detected in the act of stealing a pair of boote from the door of Mr. Vickery's shop, opposit the Market, and was given into custody.

Mr. Samuel Lyons will sell, this day, at his Mart, at half-past ten o'clock precisely, sponge, sennett for upholsterers, rattans; at eleven o'clock, iron treasure chests, patent coffee mills, grain mills, packing needles, fishhooks, screws, tacks, handsaws, carriage lamps' springs, patent axles, 76 kegs nails, gig and hunting whips, &c., vide advertisement; also, damaged iron chests, and bronze instruments, ex Mary Bannatyne.—Communicated.

Lloyd to draw the particular attention of all classes of buyers, to the very extensive assortment of goods placed in his hands, for sale without reserve, this morning, at eleven o'clock. The goods are landing from the May Queen and Windsor, and will be found well deserving attention.—Communicated.

NEWS FROM THE INTERIOR.

(From our Correspondents.)

BATHURST.

The Road to the Diggings.—The road generally taken by travellers is what is usually denominated the Swallow Creek Road. It is at least thirty-six miles from this town to the commencement of the diggings. On the whole line of road there is not a single public-house for the accommodation of travellers, consequently those persons who traverse it have no alternative but to go right through during the day, or else camp in the bush for at least one night. At this inclement season of the year this is by many felt to be a great hardship, and one or two well conducted licensed houses on the road would not only prove a great public convenience, but also amply remunerative to the proprietors. Swallow Creek, fifteen miles from Bathurst, would be a good locality for one, the other should be midway between that and the gold mines. About seven miles from the mines there is a stock station, where respectable persons are occasionally housed for the night, and there are good paddocks on the spot; but their means of accommodation are very limited, and not by any means adequate to the daily increasing wants of travellers. A mile and a half nearer Bathurst there is also a sheep station, where a person called Yorkey resides. This also is frequented of a night by the poorer class of travellers, but I believe it is about to be appropriated to the use of the Mounted Police.

An Impostor.—On Wednesday, a tall strapping Welshman, named William Jones, was rambling about the town in a half drunken state, showing a bundle of old torn paper, which he pretended was a roll of notes, and obtaining drink from the too credulous publicans, refusing afterwards to pay the same; he also induced other persons to believe that he had made the discovery of a place where gold was to be found in far greater abundance than at the Summerhill Creek, it is supposed with a view of obtaining some advantages by the information. Having attracted the attention of the constabulary, he was arrested by them and placed in the lock-up, not however without much difficulty, as he violently assaulted constable Conway, doing, as it happened, more damage to his clothes than to his person. On Friday he was brought before the Police Magistrate, and sentenced to pay a fine of £2 for the assault; but the needful not being forthcoming, he was forwarded to gaol for a month.

Reported Case of Murder at the Mines.—The report that Mr. M'Cabe was murdered at the mines appears to have had no foundation. One rumour reached Bathurst during the week, to the effect that he had been killed by a blow from a pick; and another, that he stepped out of the water where he was at work, and instantly expired. Both rumours reached Bathurst previous to Saturday last, but on the afternoon of that day, he was in good health, and was working near the upper part of the mines.

Assault at the Mines.—A report has reached Bathurst, that a young man who was at work at the mines, was struck by another digger in the mouth, with a pick, and two of his teeth knocked out. The person using the pick appears to have been severely handled after he struck the blow. The dispute arose from one of the parties taking possession of a hole which the other claimed.

Strayed Horses.—The number of horses that have strayed from the diggings is almost incredible; every day I hear of three or four being missed. Some find their way home, some return to the runs where they were bred, but a very large proportion are yet missing.

Average rate of Earnings at the Diggings.—So many and so varied have been the opinions given respecting the average earnings of the gold diggers, that people residing in the other parts of the colony must be completely mystified on the subject. To arrive at anything like an approximation to the truth, something more is required than to confine your attention to the diggers at the commencement of the mines, where the diggings have, generally speaking, been hitherto far more prolific than on other spots lower down the Creek. You must extend your enquiries all along the Creek to its confluence with the Macquarie River. You must not take it for granted that every man's lot contains as great a weight of gold as he may state it does; but use your own disinterested judgment. You must include in your calculations the number of those who get nothing or next to nothing, as well as those who obtain large lumps; and you must ascertain how many partners the gold holder may have, and how long they have been at work. At present, I do not believe the average earnings amount to above £2 per week per man. Some of the more sanguine, and the more successful, have set it down at £3, beyond which sum no person, who knows the actual state of the workings there, would venture to set it. The truth of the matter appears to be, that those parties who have met with more than usual success, soon have their good fortune blazoned about, while, on the other hand, the scores of persons whose trifling success, or their bad luck, cause them not to attract observation at the diggings, are almost entirely overlooked. Thus it is that the bright and glittering side of the question is continually before us, scarcely overshadowed by a single cloud.

Accident.—On Saturday, as a carriage belonging to H. F. Stephen, Esq., was proceding down William-street, drawn by a single horse, the animal suddenly became restive, and the coachman being, it appears, timid, managed to throw himself off; after which the horse proceeded at his own pace to the bank of the river near the Government garden, where the carriage was capsized and seriously damaged. Fortunately no one was in the carriage at the time.

Sir Thomas Mitchell.—The Surveyor-General arrived in Bathurst on Thursday last, and proceeded direct for the gold diggings on Saturday morning.

The Post Office.—The mail was rather late on Saturday, and for upwards of two hours after its arrival, the window of the Post Office was literally besieged by anxious enquirers for letters. The mail must have been a very heavy one. A grea tdeal of inconvenience is felt by persons at the diggings in getting their letters to hand, there being no Post Office nearer than Orange, which is fifteen or sixteen miles distant. It is absolutely necessary for the public convenience that a Post Office should shortly be established at the diggings, with a delivery from Bathurst three times a-week.

Committal.—On the 4th instant, Joshua Wigley was fully committed to take his trial at the ensuing Quarter Sessions, for stealing £100 in silver, from Mr. Rotton, between three and four weeks ago. The loss was reported in the Herald at the time.

BOWENFELS.

June 9.—We are inclined to think, from the very great number of Sydney people passing upward, that your streets must be beginning to look thin. The actual weekly number passing this line alone must at least average 700. The concourse at the diggings must be great, as they are flocking from all parts to the great centre of attraction. A gentleman from Mudgee passed down yesterday, it is said, with a beautiful sample of gold found in that district.

Whether for good or for evil, gold it must be admitted is rather plentiful; people of good strong constitutions, of working habits, with every requisite for a stay, do find it. For instance, four men, inclined to work, left this village exactly a fortnight ago, and returned yesterday with 26½ oz.

ISSUE OF LICENSES.

(From the Bathurst Free Press, June 7.)

Contrary to general expectation, we learn by the latest intelligence from the diggings that the issue of licenses is proceeding peaceably, and without the slightest show of opposition. In common with many other friends of peace and order, we confess that we entertained a feeling of strong anxiety upon this subject; and the more so as a report was rife and pretty generally credited that about 300 of the miners had banded together with the object of resisting the payment of the license fee. Fortunately the report turns out to be incorrect, and we feel happy in recording the circumstance. Mr. Hardy, we understand, was well received by the miners, and so soon as he signified his willingness to commence business, numbers of the peaceable and well-disposed crowded forward to tender the necessary payment for their certificates. The rest caught the contagion, and licenses were being issued as quickly as the forms could be filled up and entered. In the absence of negotiable money, the Commissioner is taking gold—a half ounce for each certificate, and in cases where the miners are unable to pay, from whatever cause, seven days have been allowed to afford them an opportunity of raising the amount by their industry. This system, we understand, is giving general satisfaction; and its adoption, together with the general bearing of the Commissioner towards the men, has rendered him rather popular. The miners of Ophir have shown their good sense by their peaceable acquiescence on this occasion, and the thanks of the community are due to them for their conduct. They have proved that they are worthy sons of the great nation from which they are sprung. A false step on this occasion might have entailed much irreparable mischief upon the community, which would have rebounded upon themselves. Should they find the tax to be oppressive, they have the ordinary constitutional means—petition and remonstrance to resort to for the obtainment of a remedy. A short time will put the Executive in possession of information by which the license fee, if discovered to be disproportioned to the average earnings of the miners, can be modified.

ITEMS OF INTELLIGENCE.

(From the Bathurst Free Press.)

The throng by the Sydney road to the diggings continues unabated, the numbers by that route alone amounting to not less than 250 to 300 daily, most of them accompanied with carts and teams containing their luggage. On Wednesday, 314 men passed through Kelso to Bathurst, and about 100 conveyances of one description or another. A gentleman informed us that on coming towards Bathurst the other morning, he counted 85 teams and upwards of 200 men camped at Mary's Lane, en route for Ophir; and a friend states that he met a small troop of Sydney exquisites at King's Plains, looking bright in spurs, kid gloves, and opera ties, and smelling sweet in hair oil and eau de Cologne. Mr Joseph West, who has just returned from the metropolis, saw 168 drays and 1117 men between Sydney and the foot of Mount Victoria. Drs. Rutter and Gwynn, from Parramatta, he says are on the road for the diggings, with a locomotive hospital, consisting of a number of tents and 25 stretchers, and (he added with a broad grin) 50 coffins filled with flour. Mr. West pledges himself to the truth of all the previous particulars, but generously leaves the last piece of intelligence to be swallowed or not as our readers choose. It is to be hoped for their own sakes that Drs. Rutter and Gwynn's outfit includes digging implements, and these gentlemen can adapt themselves to circumstances, and if need be, turn miners, as up to our last advices not a single case of sickness, more serious than a cough or cold, had occurred. The tents and stretchers may prove a good spec, but for the good of the inhabitants of Ophir, we wish that Mr. West's imaginary coffins may remain deposited in that portion of his cranium known as the organ of ideality, and as for lancets, gallipots, purgatives, and plasters, that they may be things of the distant future. On Thursday, Captain Battye arrived in town with nine mounted troopers. Mr. Maher's house in Piper-street has been rented as barracks for their accommodation. The miners still continue to pay their license fee peaceably. Every description of labour is plentiful. A sheepholder of undoubted veracity informed us yesterday that he had hired shepherds at the mines, at the usual rate of wages, but if disposed, he could have got them for £14 per annum. Several employers of labour in town say that they are daily importuned for situations by unsuccessful miners. One thing appears certain, that unless auriferous discoveries be made in other places, the labour market of this district will be supplied at the expense of our neighbours. We have heard from good authority of forty to fifty Sydney people returning homewards during the last few days disappointed. But from the wretched equipment and personal unfitness for gold digging of large numbers, this was to be expected. Amongst other arrivals we notice that of two mendicants in the shape of a blind boy and a lame one, the proprietor of a hurdy-gurdy, and the owner of a Punch and Judy establishment—all strange sights in Bathurst.

Gold.

Since our last there has not been much gold purchased in town. A few have returned from Ophir very successful; some the reverse; and more who have done tolerably well. A tailor well known in town of the name of Charles Wright, who left about a fortnight ago, but very indifferently equipped, and worked along with another man, brought the produce of their joint labours to market a day or two ago, which when sold, realised £21 15s. each. Three men from Carcoar were very fortunate on Monday last, one of them named Gorringe, an honest blacksmith, turning up three lumps weighing upwards of a pound each. A man named Worthy, late ostler to Mr. Twaddle, turned up a piece of gold of a pound and a quarter before breakfast on Wednesday morning. A hard working miner, named Thomas, returned a day or two ago, who had been digging in company with three others for three weeks. The produce of their labour was 1 oz. 15 dwts. 12 grs., for which they obtained £5 6s. 6d. A nail-maker, named Giles, has returned after a fortnight's severe digging in company with others, has earned a little over his rations. Instances of both kinds could be multiplied to any length, establishing the glorious uncertainty of a gold-digger's prospects.

The Latest Intelligence.—From Mr. Walker, who returned from the diggings yesterday afternoon, we learn that the miners were cheerfully paying their license money; coming, of their own accord, to Mr Hardy for that purpose. He left on Thursday, at 11 o'clock in the morning, up to which time upwards of 300 licenses had been issued, Mr. Walker has been employed purchasing gold on behalf of Mr. Austin, and returned to town, accompanied by an escort, with £350 worth of gold. Just before starting, a poor shepherd had picked up a lump weighing 1 lb. 7 oz., which he sold to a gentleman on the spot before weighing it, at a guess, for £50.

ORIGINAL CORRESPONDENCE.

ARMIDALE, NEW ENGLAND.

To the Editors of the Sydney Morning Herald.

Gentlemen,—You will doubtless be glad to hear in what manner we in New England have received the confirmation of the discovery of the wonderful gold mine of Ophir. On Monday every one was waiting with eagerness and anxiety for the arrival of the mail at Armidale; and when it did arrive all were stupified with wonder. Up to this time very few know what to be about. It was at first thought that there would be a general rush towards the mines; but calmer thoughts seem to have prevailed, and I do not think that many will at present leave. Flour has risen to £35 a ton. Very few of the squatters appear to have sufficiently weighed the effects of the gold discovery; some can see nothing but ruin and despair; most look on with indifference and apathy. For my part I can see no cause for despair, although I see many for discarding all indifference to our position. There can be no question that if the news from the gold mines continues to be confirmed, that a large portion of our shepherds will leave for a time, and that we shall be put to considerable shifts. The worst, however, will be, that we will have to double our flocks, and give higher wages. And here, I would suggest, that the Government ought to require that all persons who are under engagements as servants, should produce their discharges, witnessed by a magistrate, previously to obtaining a license to dig; otherwise discharges will be forged with impunity. As I have said, some look upon the squatters as utterly ruined; I think quite the reverse. If we can only preserve our sheep for twelve months, our prosperity will far exceed what has gone before. We must import Chinese, and in the mean time destroy the native dog by the free use of strychnine. Let us follow the example of the Port Phillip squatters, and in three months, and at a trifling expense, nearly all the dogs would be destroyed.

In twelve months or a little more, we may safely calculate on an increase to our population of 100,000 persons, who will consume 100,000 head of cattle, or 1,200,000 sheep, annually, and which additional supply must be drawn from the flocks and herds of the Middle District; Port Phillip and Moreton Bay being too distant to compete with us. This demand, in addition to the ordinary wants of the present population, will raise the price of meat to fourpence or six-pence a pound; and if a greater increase to the population takes place, as will certainly occur if the mines turn out prolific, the want of a sufficient supply of meat, and not, as hitherto, a superabundance, is to be feared—there is a rich harvest for the squatters to reap: here is a vision brighter and more likely to be realised than any of the most sanguine of the gold-seekers. I believe that instead of being weighed and found wanting, that the squatters will turn out to be the true Daniels who have read the illegible writing and profited by its warning. But the writing has another significance "there is gold in the cordillera," and before these words all thoughts of the revival of transportation to Australia must cease, and the "League" must vanish into the air. Transportation or anti-transportation can no longer be a test for candidates for legislatorial honours—the ideas are as those of a bygone age. No one can be so insane as to advocate its resumption in this country under its altered circumstances. With reference to Van Diemen's Land, however, a very different course must be pursued. If transportation should be abolished there at present fearful would be the ruin and despair inflicted on that land. The very existence of Van Diemen's Land will depend upon its supply of labour being of such a nature that it can be retained in the country, and to that country we must look for our principal supply of wheat. Let, however, the penal system of Van Diemen's Land be reformed. I hope that you will give the public a calm and statesmanlike article upon "The League and the Gold Field."

BURNETT RIVER.

To the Editors of the Sydney Morning Herald.

Gentlemen,—I have to request of you the insertion of the following remarks in your paper upon the re-formation and repair of roads, as it may possibly meet the eye of those interested and possessing influence, and who, if they approve of my views, I earnestly hope will exert themselves in bringing them into operation. Considerable sums have been appropriated by the Council for the repair of roads in the colony, but this, when divided among the many districts, offer to each but a mere shadow of what is really required. Not only in new districts, but also in those which have been for some time settled, there is room for very great improvements in the direction and selection of "the line." Roads, I may say, are invariably formed by the settlers pushing out one beyond the other, and steering each for his station, which road is often found to take you many miles out of the true course you should steer. This, though practically, is an almost necessary addition of distance to the horseman, who has to "make a station" each night; not so with drays though, as their route should be the shortest and best road. But even this off or "on-shoot" sort of road is anything but the best.

Selected generally by the new settler, and as frequently by his bullock-driver or other servant, neither of whom perhaps possess the aptitude of making roads straight, or, what is of more importance (and the only apology that could be offered for a crooked road), does not select such a course that will be available for travelling in all weathers.

The nature of the country, of course, at times offers impediments, but the wet and soft boggy swamp is the great drawback to a road required for constant traffic. In time these low levels will be the course of roads; but the time is not yet. In an infant district, then, we must be content to avail ourselves of such roads as nature offers, improved here and there, where absolutely necessary. I would, then, suggest—first, that in cases where the district has been surveyed by the Government, that a request through the Bench be made to the local surveyor for inspection of a plan of the road in question (on as large a scale as he possesses), that they or any person appointed by them then decide whether it be desirable to alter the line or any part thereof, as on the plan before you you have the errors, and you see at a glance the advantages to be derived of any suggested change. Now, you can finally decide upon the course of the road, and then you will know that you are working upon the proper foundation, and expending our funds upon the proper spot. It is not an unusual circumstance upon a line of road in this district for drays to be stopped for weeks together. I frequently myself travel this road, and have in the rainy season (say March or April) seen drays buried to the axle-tree, defying the power of two teams of bullocks to move them. The drays are, possibly, laden with wool, which is very liable to serious injury; or perhaps returning to the station with rations, which are imperatively needed for the establishment. The men during this detention of course must be rationed, and heavy smith's bills appear under these circumstances for iron work, and other things broken. With all these (and many other known and experienced) liabilities, I know that the proprietors of drays will be willing to bear a light tax for the repair and improvement of the roads of their district,—a tax which will be nothing commensurate with the great benefit they will derive from the improved state of the roads.

I propose, therefore, that the owner of each dray, cart, gig, &c., pay annually £3; and every person possessing one or more horses, pay annually 10s.; that returns be made annually (forms of which to be had at the Court House) of the number of drays owned by each person; that each settler make a return, not only of his own horse, but also of each person's horse working for him then upon his establishment; that he be the responsible person for the payment of his return, and that he be empowered to deduct the 10s. from his servant's wages the day subsequent to that upon which the return was made; that a receipt be given to each person upon payment, and if a person supposed to have evaded the tax, and unable to produce a receipt, he be fined £2 for horse, and 6s. for dray; that a day be appointed for the payment of the tax, in a central part of the district (say the most central settlement), and any person failing to appear or send another to pay his assessment, be fined double the sum. The person appointed to collect the sum should be approved of by the bench, and should find sureties in a proper amount. In this method of raising money you will perceive that those who really are benefitted, pay. The carrier could then with certainty calculate upon his power to complete his journey, and with a team of lesser power.

The settler, I have before shown, is benefitted; and the horseman will think little of this 10s., when he finds the various spots upon the road he used to dread wear a different aspect.

Of course I do not mean this letter to apply to those portions of the country where they have turnpikes—let a line be drawn as to where it would be desirable for this scheme to apply.

It has often struck me, as a thing to be wondered at, that the community of a district could or would not recognize the very great benefit they would each confer upon himself and others, by the furtherance of a good means of certain and speedy communication,—this I ever look upon as one of the very first principles of improvement, and a certain source of profit. I conclude my somewhat lengthy epistle, by observing, that the proceeds of the tax should be expended at the discretion of a full bench of magistrates of the district,—that they decide what portion of road requires the most immediate attention, and they appoint a competent person, either by contract or otherwise, to carry out their views.

I have the honour to be, Gentlemen,

Your obedient servant,

ONE WILLING TO PAY THE TAX.

May 4.

THE CONVICT QUESTION.

(From the Times, January 23.)

Great as are the difficulties which the resolution of the colonists of the Cape of Good Hope and of New South Wales, not to receive our convicts on any terms, must place in the way of any change in our convict system, the time has obviously arrived when on every principle—moral, religious, and social—transportation to Van Diemen's Land must be discontinued. Whatever be the resolution at which our Government arrives—whether it be its intention to avail itself of the boundless territory which it possesses in the western half of the Continent to carry out the same system of transportation on a large scale which produced in New South Wales, together with many social evils, such an enormous development of material prosperity, or whether it be intended to give a fresh development to the penitentiary system, and to retain among us that corrupted and corrupting element which we have hitherto so carefully eliminated—the case of Van Diemen's Land will admit neither of delay nor excuse. It is the imperative duty of Parliament—a duty to the ready performance of which to races of another colour and less advanced civilization the East and West Indies are accordant witnesses—not to suffer one section of the empire to be trampled on for the benefit of the rest, nor to divide its provinces into favourites and victims. We do not prefer one English county above or degrade it below its fellows; and the same principle may, with the most perfect justice, be applied to the weakest and most remote of our dependencies. We are not speaking now of what may be called the sentimental side of the convict question, but of its physical and material aspect; and on this point we will cite as a witness, not some colonial agitator who seeks for popularity by tirades against the Home Government, but the very Minister who has hitherto continued transportation to Van Diemen's Land, and as far as appearances go, intends to continue it so long as he remains in office. In March, 1847, Lord Grey thus expressed himself with regard to transportation to Van Diemen's Land:—"While the system had been expensive to the mother country, to the colony it had been absolute ruin. The charge thus thrown on the colony had made it bankrupt. By this system many of the most valuable settlers in Van Diemen's Land had been forced to quit the island, and thus a most serious blow had been inflicted on the prosperity of the colony: it had received a check from which it would not recover for many years. To insist upon maintaining transportation to Van Diemen's Land would be to drive away the free colonists, at whatever pecuniary sacrifice to themselves, to take refuge in South Australia, New South Wales, or some of the neighbouring colonies. Van Diemen's Land would become what Norfolk Island was—a vast horde of criminals, thirty thousand in number, with nothing but their keepers, with no society of free men to watch over the conduct of the officers."

It is now four years since this dreadful picture was drawn, and this awful prediction was uttered, and during the whole of that period the painter has been heightening the colours of his portrait. The prophet has been verifying his prediction; in other words, with the exception of a few prisoners lately sent to Western Australia, Lord Grey has poured the whole of our transported felons upon this devoted community. What must be the feelings of this people—a people of the English race when they find a Minister of the Crown rigorously enforcing upon them a system of policy which he declares has produced their bankruptcy and ruin, and will certainly produce their ultimate annihilation? Where in history, ancient or modern, can be found a parallel to the spectacle of a Government deliberately telling its subjects that its policy is ruin, and yet for a series of years enforcing that policy in its utmost integrity? Lest, however, our readers should suppose that Lord Grey has stated the case too strongly against himself, we will proceed to point out how it is that the system of transportation, which produced so much material prosperity on the Continent of Australia, should be so ruinous to Van Diemen's Land.

Van Diemen's Land is an island of pretty nearly the size of Ireland, but the quantity of available land bears but a small proportion to its area. The colony was originally an offshoot of New South Wales, and as long as the number of convicts transported to it was moderate, and the assignment system, or compulsory servitude to settlers, was permitted, it partook largely of the material prosperity of its parent; but in 1840 the assignment system was abolished, transportation to New South Wales ceased, and all the convicts of the empire were crowded into the unfortunate island. Had the contrary been the case, had the continent continued to receive transported offenders, and the island been freed from their presence, the material results would undoubtedly have been less disastrous. The craving demands of the continent for labour are so insatiable, that no conceivable importation of free or convict labour could permanently reduce its wages; but in the island things were very different; the circumscribed area of land fit for cultivation and pasture has long been occupied, and a limit thus placed to the rapid accumulation of capital. Upon a community thus circumstanced all the convicts of the empire have for ten years been quartered, with a permission, on obtaining a ticket-of-leave, to work for wages in the island. We do not now speak of the inexpressible misery and degradation inflicted on a community steeped up to the lips in a concentrated mass of pollution which Parliament had deemed insufferable when thinly scattered over the continent of Australia, but merely of the position in which such an inundation placed the free labourers of Van Diemen's Land. The competition of the convicts in this limited field of employment necessarily reduced wages below those of the continent, and promoted re-emigration thither. The convicts were unable to leave the island; the free labourers were under no such disability. The consequence has been that every successive importation of convicts displaced a corresponding proportion of free labour, and the colony is rapidly approaching the point so clearly foreseen and so eloquently described by Lord Grey, in which it will be a vast horde of twenty or thirty thousand criminals and their keepers.

It is computed that in the last ten years not less than twelve thousand free labourers have been thus forced from the colony to make room for the felons of Great Britain. These labourers were brought out by the Colonial Land Fund at a rate which cannot be calculated at less than twenty pounds a head, and their re-emigration has therefore been a loss to this small community of nearly a quarter of a million. The population of Van Diemen's Land in 1848 consisted of 67,918 persons. Of these 38,133 adults were persons who have been transported to the colony; the free adults are estimated at 13,000; so that three-fourths of the whole population are convicts, while the process by which this frightful disproportion has been created and will be increased is in full activity. Nor has the diminished cost of labour increased the rate of profit; the enormous incidental expenses which the presence of such an amount of crime has brought on the colony has reduced it, as Lord Grey truly says, to ruin and bankruptcy. The coercion and punishment of our criminals has forced upon the colony a scale of expenditure and a system of taxation unheard of in young communities. Property has been greatly depreciated, and it is principally from the inability to dispose of it on terms short of absolute ruin, that there remain any vestiges of the happy and prosperous community that once inhabited the island. We must therefore echo, though we cannot go beyond, Lord Grey's denunciation of the exterminating system, which he has himself pursued, and is still pursuing. Stung by these intolerable grievances, the colonists assembled in public meeting on the 9th August last, and with all the energy which despair could give them, protested against being thus singled out of the empire for certain and ignominious destruction. They indignantly repudiate the assertion of Lord Grey, that they were in any degree reconciled to the system which was destroying them, as little less than a charge of insanity; they appeal to the promises of immediate relief which were made by Ministers in 1847, and which to this day have been utterly violated; they claim from the honour of the Crown the performance of those pledges, and implore it from the people and the Parliament in the name of justice and mercy, in the name of their common race, religion, language, and government. We trust, for the credit of the nation, that appeal will be heard; but if we are still deaf to the voice of compassion and justice, let us remember that we have given these people a Legislative Assembly, without whose assent the machine of Government cannot be carried on, and who are scarcely likely to consent to be the passive instruments for imposing an inordinate taxation for purposes utterly ruinous to their constituents. If we had occasion to comment on the anomaly of withdrawing our troops from Australia without a redress of grievances, how much stranger is it to pursue a system which we admit to be utterly ruinous to Van Diemen's Land, and while that system is in full force to appoint a Legislature which has no other means of arresting it than by stopping the supplies, and thus coming into direct collision with the mother country?

3 ALLOTMENTS AT GIPPS TOWN.
MORT AND BROWN have instructions from the Executors to a deceased estate to sell by public auction, at their Rooms, George-street, THIS DAY, Wednesday, 11th June, at 11 o'clock,

HIGHLY IMPORTANT BATHURST PROPERTY.
The Railway Inn
Fitzpatrick's Store
Landregan's Store
Wylde's Bathurst Bakery
Kenehar's Cottage and Shop
Four Brick Built Cottages
Cottage and Blacksmith's Shop
Butcher's Shop and Premises
Block of Land in Howick-street.
By order of the proprietor, Mr. Peter White, who is compelled to leave the colony for England, owing to the indisposition of Mrs. White.
☞ The rental of the above property—independent of the blocks of Land—has hitherto been from £450 to £500 per annum, but fully twice this amount may now be obtained for them, situated as they are in the very centre of Bathurst, and on the high road to the Gold Field.

MORT AND BROWN are instructed by the proprieter to offer the above for sale by public auction, at their Rooms, George-street, on MONDAY, June 16th, at 11 o'clock, and positively without any reserve.
IN ONE LOT.
The RAILWAY INN, a handsome and substantial brick-built edifice, at present occupied by the proprietor, is situated at the corner of George and Howick streets, the opposite corner to Mrs. Black's Inn, the latter street being the starting point and highway to the diggings.
These premises contain eleven rooms, besides cellarage, kitchen, offices, out-buildings, stables for six horses, &c., &c. There is a large yard enclosed with brick wall, and the Inn has a handsome balcony in front. The rental which could now be obtained for these extensive premises is from £400 to £500 per annum, the former sum having been refused. The good-will of an extensive business will go with the Inn.
FITZPATRICK'S STORE and DWELLING, doing a first-rate business, subject to an eighteen months' lease at £70 per annum, but worth now £150 to £200, adjoins the Inn, fronting into George-street.
LANDREGAN'S STORE and DWELLING
WYLDE'S BAKERY, DWELLING, and PREMISES
These form part of the handsome row of buildings formed by the Inn, Fitzpatrick's Store, and Kenehar's Cottage; they are free of lease, and the same in all respects as Fitzpatrick's, and would command the same rental. The Bakery has the advantage of a six-stalled brick-built stable.
KENEHAR'S COTTAGE completes the row; this would command a rental of £50 a-year.
The balcony is continued from the Inn in front of all the building except the cottage and the whole pile is as substantial as brick and mortar can be made; they are stuccoed with lime and sand, and the shops have handsome fronts to one of the principal streets.
Attached to the above is a large BLOCK OF LAND about 80 feet to George-street, which leads to containing two rooms each, all well and substantially built, and let to good tenants at four shillings each per week; they would of course now bring much more.
Also, BLACKSMITH'S SHOP and COTTAGE, fronting to George-street, let at 7s. 6d. per week, now worth at least 15s.
Besides, BUTCHER'S SHOP, dwelling-room, and yard, with shed, only let at 8s. per week hitherto, but now worth treble that sum, as it fronts the principal street, and comes up to the inn premises on the main road to Ophir.
After which, a Valuable Block of BUILDING LAND, having 165 feet frontage to Howick-street, the main outlet from the centre of Bathurst to the gold-field—by a large depth. Cottages erected upon these vacant plots would command high rentals.
☞ As this is an unreserved sale, the Auctioneers claim the especial attention of capitalists and others to it. It must not be forgotten that, under any circumstances, a very large rental is obtainable from this property; and when it is considered that it could not now be erected for double if not treble its first cost, there can be little apprehension but, as an investment, it will most amply repay the purchaser, even supposing that the immense inward traffic to Ophir should be left out of the question. But, taking this into consideration, it is not at all improbable that an interest beyond anything that ordinary investments offer may be obtained—an income partaking of the results of gold-digging without its toil or difficulties.
Terms and all particulars may be learnt on application to the Auctioneers.
Title—Unexceptionable.
